Research Assistant Professor – Sleep Apnea

The University of Chicago’s Department of Medicine, Institute for Integrative Physiology/Section of Emergency Medicine, is searching for a Research Assistant Professor in the area of cardio-respiratory response to sleep apnea. The appointee will work in association with a faculty member or team to complement the research area and contribute to project conception and execution. We especially welcome applicants with experience in the biochemistry or epigenetics of enzymes involved in gaseous transmission. Compensation, including a generous package of fringe benefits, is dependent upon qualifications.

Applicants must have: 1) a doctoral degree or equivalent in the biological sciences or a related discipline, and 2) completed postdoctoral training prior to the start of employment.

To be considered, those interested must apply through The University of Chicago’s Academic Recruitment job board, which uses Interfolio to accept applications: http://apply.interfolio.com/101495. Applicants must upload a CV including bibliography. Review of applications ends when the position is filled.
