Lecturer in Physiology

Job Summary
The Department of Physiology and Pharmacology in the College of Veterinary Medicine at the University of Georgia is expanding our teaching faculty to meet the needs of our growing educational programs. We seek an energetic and innovative educator to teach upper-level undergraduate students in our new Biomedical Physiology program. This individual will teach the equivalent of two to three 3-credit hour courses per academic term, participate in the development of new course materials, and supervise teaching assistants. There may also be opportunities to advise undergraduate students, to contribute to our graduate program teaching mission, and to participate in instruction in our veterinary medicine program.

The University of Georgia, the flagship university of the University System of Georgia, draws its students from our growing and diverse state, and the Department of Physiology and Pharmacology strives to reflect that diversity in a vibrant, collegial environment with strong potential for growth in both instruction and research. The College of Veterinary Medicine is committed to a welcoming, inclusive environment for all students, faculty, and staff. We know we are strongest when we reflect the diversity of our community and our state.

The University of Georgia is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, ethnicity, age, genetic information, disability, gender identity, sexual orientation, or protected veteran status. Persons needing accommodations or assistance with the accessibility of materials related to this search are encouraged to contact Central HR (hrweb@uga.edu). Please do not contact the department or search committee with such requests.

The Community:
Athens, Georgia, is a highly regarded college town and one of the most desirable cities for living in the Southeastern Region (https://livability.com/best-places/top-100-best-places-to-live/2020/athens-ga). Located in northeast Georgia 65 miles from Atlanta, Athens is close to both mountains and beaches. To learn more about our community visit http://www.visitathensga.com.

Minimum Requirements:

Relevant/Preferred Experience
- Evidence of teaching excellence using active learning methods in both small and large group settings is highly desirable.
- Preference will be given to candidates with demonstrated ability to teach multiple areas of physiology as well as pharmacology.
Salary and Rank:
This is a full-time, 9-month academic appointment at the rank of Lecturer, with an expectation of teaching up to three 3-credit hour courses per semester, depending upon other assigned duties. Salary commensurate with qualifications and experience.

How to Apply
Position Start Date: August 1, 2022 or negotiable.
Applicants must apply at: https://www.ugajobsearch.com/postings/228165
Posting number F1060P

Please include:
1. Cover Letter
2. Resume/Vitae
3. Teaching Statement
4. List of References with Contact Information